

Possible long-term health effects of pesticide exposure

Respiratory problems

Damage to nervous system

Higher cancer risk

During pregnancy

- Miscarriages
- Babies born too early or too small
- Birth defects
- Problems with how a child's brain works and develops

Please note that:

- Using pesticides, even in small amounts over time, can harm our health.
- Being exposed to a very toxic pesticide just once may also cause health problems later.
- Pesticide health problems might not show up for months or even years.

Learn more